EDMUND RICE'S HOMESTEAD

At Sudbury, now Wayland, Mass., 1639, our first ancestor in this country.

INTRODUCTION.

CONWAY, MASS.

Prior to the Revolution that section of Deerfield known as the "Southwest," and subsequently as Conway, seems to have had great attractions for our ancestors and others who flocked thither from Worcester, Barre, Grafton, Rutland, Leicester and other parts of Massachusetts, and there amid primeval forest and savage Indian took up their abode, reclaimed the soil, erected homes, carried on their trades and industries, and in five short years had the settlement set off from Deerfield and incorporated as a separate and distinct township.

Previous to 1762 Conway was a vast wilderness without a single white inhabitant. It is said, however, that Timothy Rice, of Barre, came to this section of Deerfield as early as 1748, and that he was followed by Jonas Rice, of Barre, after 1756, and then by Cyrus Rice of the same town in 1762, followed by other branches of the family from Westboro, Worcester and other parts of Massachusetts. But the first to build a house and settle in Conway was Cyrus Rice, in 1762. All authorities on the subject agree upon the fact that Cyrus left his home in Barre early in the spring of 1762, came to this section of Deerfield, purchased a tract of land situated upon a high eminence overlooking the valley of the Connecticut River, cleared the ground, planted crops, and erected a log house of the trees that he had hewn down, and then in the fall of that year returned to Barre, and with his wife and five children and all his household effects went back to Conway and there began life anew, his only neighbor being the red man of the forest.

But in a short time other settlers began to come in—among them being Israel Gates, Ebenezer Allis, Consider Arns, Elias Dickinson, Thomas French, Isaac Wilder, Jonathan Whitney, Elisha Amsden, Solomon Field and John Boyden, men of stalwart characters and noble purpose in life, some of whose sons and daughters and descendants have illuminated the pages of history with deeds of honor and valor and made the world at large better for their having lived in it.

The little colony thus gathered soon strengthened in numbers and importance, until in 1767, when the people applied for and obtained a separation from Deerfield and became incorporated under the name of Conway. The first town meeting was held at the house of Thomas French, August 24, 1767, when Thomas French, Consider Arns, and Samuel Wells were chosen selectmen. Three weeks later provision was made for the establishment of preaching and the erection of a meeting-house. Two years later the church was erected, and the Rev. John Emerson was installed as pastor of the Congregational Church, December 21, 1769. He remained its spiritual leader until June 26, 1828, when he was taken to his reward on high. During his pastorate he admitted 580 persons to the church, baptized over 1,219 persons, and followed to the grave 1,037 of his flock. In 1778 a Baptist church was organized in the town with twenty-nine members, and a Methodist church was formed in May, 1852. When tidings reached Conway of the alarm at Lexington and the breaking out of the Revolution, the citizens of the town gathered at their meeting-house and voted to sustain the Continental Congress and to support whatever measures they might put forth. At the alarm of Lexington, Conway responded with a large number of volunteers, many of whom laid down their lives for their country. In the Massachusetts soldiers and sailors of the Revolution the names of 427 Rices appear upon the list from different parts of the state.

A grist mill was built in Conway in the year 1774, followed by other industries which gave occupation to the people, chief among them being a cotton and woolen mill, and blacksmithing. In those days this latter trade was most popular. Upon the blacksmith depended the supply of all the hardware used in the construction of buildings, in the making of wagons, agricultural implements and all other articles made of iron. There were no factories in those days to turn out by machinery these necessary articles as in the present time, consequently we find the blacksmith making all the nails, bolts, locks, hinges, plows, shovels, tools, horseshoes, etc., as well as the wagons and sleighs then in use. As the demands of the trade were great and the work profitable, many of the Rices engaged in it. Later, however, as machinery came into use, the Rices became the tillers of the soil, and many of their descendants became farmers. Among them were Jonas Rice whose farm was handed down to his descendants Joel, Jonah, Calvin and Joel; also Israel Rice and his son Joseph and grandson Austin; also Daniel Rice and his son Rodolphus.

The population of Conway in 1776 was 905; in 1790 it rose to 2,082, the largest the town ever had. In 1866 it fell off to 1,538, while to-day there are not more than a thousand people living there. While beautiful in situation, and possessing many natural advantages, it is off the line of the railway and suffers from isolation.

In the early days of Conway the Rices were very numerous, there are but few remaining to-day. Mr. Franklin Rice, a descendant of Benjamin, is living at Ashfield with his family, and carrying the mail between that point and Conway. James B. Rice, Roswell G. Rice, William H. Rice, Mrs. Luna Rice Lee and

Mrs. Jennie Rice Boyden, lineal descendants, are still living in Conway. (1908.) Other descendants are living in Deerfield, South Deerfield, Southbridge and other contiguous places. But the vast number are scattered all over the United States from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico.

The Rev. Charles B. Rice, in his address at the celebration of the hundredth anniversary of the incorporation of Conway, held in that town June 19, 1867, locates for us the sites of the various farms that were occupied by the early Rices. Of the first settler, Cyrus, he says: His house was upon the south side of an old and now unused road that led from the vicinity of John Field's, past the place lately occupied by Bradley Packard, to the present county road a little distance above the old tavern stand long known as the Hawley place. The first house was about twenty-five rods southeast of the spot now marked by an ancient cellar with bricks and rubbish, on which the family afterwards lived. In this house Beulah Rice was born, the first child born in Conway. Further on westerly, on the top of the hill, Jonas Rice, of Grafton, located, and where his descendant Joel lived.

Still further on, Deacon Caleb Rice lived, moving afterwards to the top of Arms' Hill, and to Genesee. Beyond the river, in Broomshire, was Israel Rice, from Grafton, and where afterwards Austin Rice lived, and northward of him, Timothy Rice also of Grafton settled. Israel Rice and William Warren were the first of these settlers. Mr. Warren with the father of Mr. Rice explored the neighborhood and bought lands in 1762, the year of Cyrus's coming. Two years later Mr. Warren and Israel Rice undertook to visit their estates, but losing the former track up the Deerfield, and striking the sharp banks of the South River at or below the point of Hoosac they could not cross and went back disconcerted. The next year they effected a landing, crossing near the present bridge, and prepared, Mr. Rice the frame, Mr. Warren the logs, for a house. In 1766 they brought their families. Joseph and Benjamin Rice, twin brothers from Westboro settled in Conway about 1774-75, where they carried on a prosperous business in blacksmithing.

In 1867 there were sixteen farms still occupied by the descendants of the first owners and occupants. Among them were the following in the order of their descent: The farm of Jonas Rice, Joel, Calvin, Joel; of Israel Rice, Joseph, Austin; Bertha, wife of Daniel Rice, Rodolphus.

I am greatly indebted for much valuable assistance in compiling this genealogy to Mr. H. W. Billings, of Conway; Mrs. Percy W. Rice, of Cleveland, O.; Miss Julia H. Rice, of Burlington, Vt., and to many others without whose aid this work could not have been accomplished.

Mount Vernon, N. Y., January, 1909.

DESCENDANTS OF CYRUS RICE, FIRST SETTLER AT CONWAY.

CYRUS RICE (Josiah; Ephraim; Thomas; Edmund), son of Josiah and Sarah Rice, was born in Worcester, Mass., December 10, 1726. His father died at the early age of 33 years, leaving a widow, a son and two daughters.

On March 27, 1750, Cyrus was married to Elizabeth Eaton, of Worcester. She was the daughter of Ezra and Silence King, alias Rice, of Brimfield, Mass., now Monsen, born November 16, 1732, and married first a man by the name of Eaton. No record of this marriage or of his death has been found.

Cyrus after his marriage with Mrs. Eaton in 1750, removed to Barre, where five of his children were born. There are certain deeds upon record at Springfield showing that his wife Elizabeth inherited from her father Ezra, who died January 14, 1746, a portion of the estate, and also showing that Cyrus purchased from William King twenty-three acres of land in Brimfield, being William's interest in the estate. Elizabeth also had twenty-three acres.

A deed dated October 18, 1756 (Book 2, page 363), and recorded at Springfield, Mass., makes Cyrus a resident of Rutland.

It has been claimed that his wife, Elizabeth, died soon after reaching Conway in 1762, and that the daughter, Beulah, who was born January 10, 1764, was the child of a second wife.

This claim, however, cannot stand in view of the fact that at Springfield there is a deed upon record (Book 7, page 587) dated April 13, 1764, and signed by Cyrus Rice and his wife Elizabeth, of Deerfield, and other heirs of Ezra King, alias Rice, showing that she was living in April, 1764. This settles the dispute about Beulah being the child of a second wife. Another interesting fact is that this child was named after her mother's sister, Beulah.

Elizabeth died however before 1767, and was buried in Deerfield, though no record of the death can be found. It is recorded in Deerfield that Cyrus was married on October 19, 1767, to Elizabeth Wright, by the Justice of Peace, Thomas Williams. The church records at Conway state that this second wife united with the church there from Harvard, May 16, 1770, and that she died at Conway, February 16, 1779, at the age of 40 years.

Nine months later, on November 29, 1779, Cyrus married Mrs. Ruth Lamb, of Deerfield, widow of Samuel Lamb, with whom he lived but four years, she dying October 3, 1803, at the age of 56 years.

Of his three wives but one has erected to her memory a tombstone, the last, which is in the cemetery at Conway alongside that of her husband, Cyrus, who died August 4, 1804, at the age of 77 years, loved and respected by all who knew him. Although a farmer by occupation, he devoted a good part of his time to the development and welfare of the town of which he was the first settler. On June 16, 1767, Conway was set off from Deerfield, to which it had belonged and was long known as "the Southwest," and incorporated as a separate and distinct township. Cyrus was one of the prime movers in this action, and at its first meeting as an incorporated town, held August 24, 1767, he was chosen constable of the town, an honorable and important office in those days. Subsequently, during the year 1776-77, at the outbreak of the Revolution, he served in the General Court of Massachusetts as a representative of his district. He united with the Congregational Church at Conway, April 22, 1770.

(8) STEPHEN RICE, son of Cyrus and Elizabeth (Wright) Rice, born in Conway, March 16, 1769. His son Harvey speaking of him in after years said: "My father was a man of fine physical proportions and of great physical strength. Though not highly educated, he possessed a logical mind, and rarely met his equal in debating a theological question. As the grand object of his life he never sought wealth nor did he acquire it. Yet he managed to live in comfortable circumstances and always sustained an irreproachable character. For his memory I entertain a profound filial regard and ever recall with gratitude his paternal kindness and solicitude for my welfare."

STEPHEN RICE (S).

STEPHEN RICE'S HOMESTEAD, CONWAY.

Built by himself before 1800, and in which Harvey Rice was born.

Stephen bought a farm adjoining that of his father, Cyrus, and lived on it all the days of his life. He married for his first wife, Mrs. Lucy (Baker) Harvey, October 4, 1799, by whom he had three children, two of whom died quite young. A son of Mrs. Lucy Baker Harvey, Hayden Harvey, after the marriage of his mother to Mr. Rice, took the name of Rice and moved to Troy, N. Y., and died there November 17, 1828. She died in Conway, August 2, 1804, aged 33 years. Stephen married (2) February 27, 1814, Mrs. Abigail Freeman Hamilton, of Conway, with whom he lived until her death, August 8, 1836, aged 62 years. (33) VII. HON. HARVEY RICE, son of Stephen and Lucy Baker (Harvey) Rice, was born in Conway, Mass., June 11, 1800. His father, Stephen, was a farmer with whom he lived until he was seventeen years of age, when he left the farm with his father's approval and devoted his earnings from school teaching to preparation for college. He was graduated from Williams College in 1824, and removed to Cleveland, O., where he opened St. Clair Academy as a classical school. He was admitted to the bar in 1826, and practiced law in Cleveland, 1826-28, as a partner with his preceptor, Reuben Wood. In 1828 he purchased the Independent News Letter, changed the name to the Cleveland Plain Dealer, and edited the paper. He was a Democratic representative from Cuyahoga County in the State Legislature, 1830-31; agent at Millersburg for the sale of Western Reserve school lands in the Virginia military district, completing in three years (1833-36) the sale of 50,000 acres, and paying nearly $150,000 to the State treasury, as a school fund for the exclusive benefit of the children of the Western Reserve. He was clerk of the Court of Common Pleas at Cleveland, and of the Supreme Court, 1833-40; the unsuccessful candidate for the twenty-fifth and twenty-sixth

HON. HARVEY RICE, LL.D. (33).

Congresses, 1836-38; State Senator, 1852-54; and introduced the bill for a new system for the public schools of Ohio, and the establishment of school libraries. He was a member of the city council in 1857, serving as chairman of the committee that established the Cleveland Industrial School, and the same year projected the Perry monument for the public park. In 1862 he was a commissioner to conduct the first draft made in the country. In 1867 he erected at his own expense, a monument at Mission Park, Williamstown, Mass., commemorative of the origination by Samuel J. Mills, in 1806, of the American Board of Foreign Missions, and on July 22, 1898, the citizens of Cleveland unveiled a bronze statue to the memory of Harvey Rice, LL.D., as the "Father of the Ohio School System." The honorary degree of LL.D. was conferred on him by Williams College, in 1871. He was president of the Early Settlers' Association of Cuyahoga County at the time of his death, which occurred in Cleveland, O., November 7, 1891.

He married first Fannie Rice, of Sheldon, Vt., at the house of her brother-in-law, George Reuben Wood, September 27, 1828. She was born, February 24, 1808, and died, December 21, 1837, leaving the following children, all born in Cleveland, O.:

(36) VII. HENRY FREEMAN RICE, son of Stephen and Abigail (Hamilton) Rice, was born July 19, 1818; married Jennie E. Hume, of Canada, August 31, 1853. He died in California, November 27, 1877. He entered early in life the transportation and express business in Boston, Mass., and soon showed a capacity for large affairs. He came to Cleveland in the forties and entered into extensive business affairs, coal and transportation, with Joseph Chamberlain, continuing a number of years. In the fifties he removed with his family to Carson, Nev., where he entered into mining operations. There he built up a character for honesty and integrity, and although a Democrat politically, President

Grant, entirely unsolicited, gave him the superintendency of the United States Mint at Carson, which position he held up to the time of his death.

(45) ARAMINTA (RICE) WALTON, daughter of Obed and Sarah (Kinney) Rice, born February 2, 1809; married Joseph Walton, of New Orleans, La., in 1836. She had several children, all of whom died in infancy, except Mary, born about 1840 and died in May, 1895, unmarried. Araminta died March 2, 1893. Mr. Walton died about 1841. In 1844 or 1845 the widow married L. J. Webster, of New Orleans, La., and had two sons:

69. 1. Grason Taylor Webster, b. ——— 1845; m. ———.
70. 2. Frank Bacon Webster, b. Jan., 1848; m. ———.

(46) SIDNEY RICE, son of Obed and Sarah (Kinney) Rice, was born in Troy, N. Y., August 4, 1810; an orphan at 13 years old, he was apprenticed to one of his father's friends that he might learn the hardware business. He was a man that loved books and, like his father, was very devout. He married Julia Redfield Hall, daughter of Timothy Hall, of Troy, N. Y., August 12, 1840. In the spring of 1843 he went west and settled at Cincinnati, which he afterwards regarded as his home though he lived in Newport, Ky., on the opposite side of the river, for a number of years. His business interests were in Cincinnati. His wife died April 16, 1882. The family lie buried in Spring Grove Cemetery, back of Cincinnati.

(52) PERCIVAL WOOD RICE, son of Harvey and Fannie Rice, born November 27, 1829, in Cleveland, O., where he has continued to live up to the present time. Early in life his father intended giving him a classical education, and with this end in view sent him to a private school, where under a competent teacher he readily mastered Latin and Greek. A weakness developed in his eyes, and at the age of fifteen he left school and took clerkships in the Post-office and other houses. In 1850 he became private secretary to his uncle, Gov. Reuben Wood, in Columbus, O., with rank of colonel on his staff, and retained the same position under Gov. Wood's successor in office. In 1853 Mr. Rice entered business in Cleveland, O., and under the firm name of Rice & Burnett carried on a most successful business as importers and dealers in china, crockery and cut glass. After thirty-five years he retired from business in 1889.

In 1861, when the call came for troops at the opening of the Civil War, the Light Artillery Company of Cleveland, of which organization he had served as captain for years, volunteered its services with Mr. Rice as leader, and was attached to the Ohio 14th under General Steedman in Western Virginia. They (the Cleveland battery) fired the first gun on the Union side of the war at the battle at Phillips, West Virginia. His term of service having expired, Mr. Rice returned home, and resumed business, but later he re-entered the service during the Cincinnati raid, serving under General Lew Wallace, located at Newport, Ky. He has been honored on several occasions with marks of distinction from his fellow citizens—member of the Loyal Legions; member of the Board of Elections for five years; trustee of the Water Works of Cleveland; an active member of the building committee for the erection of the Society for Savings, an institution he has served as trustee for twenty years; was instrumental in engineering the Federal Bill through the Ohio legislature; he is an enthusiastic yachtsman; he inherited from his father a love for reading and all that is best in art, science and literature; a man of firmness and steadfastness of purpose, possessing an un-failing sense of honor and high integrity. His refined and cultivated tastes and charitable generosity doubtless were imprinted in his nature by the young mother whom he knew so little, but who left the unmistakable traces of the gentle woman. These characteristics, a long and honorable business career, followed by the respect of his fellow townsmen, have won for him that enviable title—a substantial and foremost citizen of Cleveland.

Mr. Rice married (1) Mary (Triggs) Cutter, October 4, 1854, born July 2, 1832, and died October 9, 1858, leaving one child; (2) married Sarah Bunnell Peck, daughter of Nehemiah and Martha Scovill Peck, of New Britain, Conn., October 20, 1864; she was born February 7, 1838. In 1878 Mr. and Mrs. Rice adopted a daughter of Spafford and Fannie Harmon Smith, PERCIVAL WOOD RICE (52).

(86) WALTER PERCIVAL RICE, son of Percival Wood and Mary Triggs Cutter Rice, born in Cleveland, O., September 2, 1855; entered the public school at the age of seven; and at fifteen went to a preparatory school in Williamstown, Mass., where he spent two years preparing for college; but his aptitude for mathematics, and dislike of Latin and Greek, turned the tide and sent him to a technical school, the Lehigh University, which he entered in 1872, taking the engineering course, and graduating with honors in July, 1876. He began the practice of his profession at once by opening an office in Cleveland, making bridge building a specialty, but taking all forms of construction work.

Many fine bridges in the country bear evidence of his skill and ability in overcoming great obstacles that are not presented on the surface of things, and have called forth high praise from the profession.

His proficiency in his calling has created for him a position of authority among his co-workers, and frequently he is called in consultation when serious and great problems are to be determined, and the best results reached. His probity and freedom from private gain have given him a name that stands for absolute honesty and for skill in his profession. He has held the office of city engineer of Cleveland a number of times and is held in high repute both for his professional skill and integrity of character.

On September 2d, 1903, he was married to Margaret Anderson Barteau, born November 2, 1876.

He is at present living in Cleveland, O.

(87) ROLLIN PROCTOR BURNETT, son of Proctor Rollin Burnett and Fannie Maria (Rice) Burnett, born February 1, 1862; married, October 4, 1884, Lillian A. (88) JAMES HARVEY IRVINE, son of James and Henrietta Maria Rice Irvine, born October 16, 1867, in San Francisco; married, in 1892, Anita Plum, and resided at Tustin, Orange Co., Cal. Upon the death of his father, the son, James Harvey Irvine, inherited the estate. Few Americans of this generation born into an estate of such magnitude as fell to James Harvey Irvine upon the death of his father come into it realizing its duties and responsibilities as he seems to have done, and exercising a rare judgment and modesty in regard to it that is seldom witnessed. The giving of the park in Orange Co. and other public and private benefactions are but a tithe, and he is fulfilling in the largest measure the command of the well-known saying—"Noblesse Oblige." Mrs. Anita Plum Irvine died February ——— 1909.

(86) COL. AUSTIN RICE, son of Joseph and Betty (Dickerson) Rice, born at Conway July 16, 1794; on October 23, 1822, he married Charlotte Baker (born May 21, 1802), a former pupil in one of the schools he taught. On beginning their married life, they established family prayers, which were said both morning and evening, a custom they kept up from that day throughout their whole married life. They joined the Congregational Church at Conway by profession of faith September 6, 1829. Austin received his strong religious impressions from his grandmother, Lydia Sherman Rice, who was a very godly woman. In those days every able-bodied man was required to train in arms, so Austin was enrolled in the "Floodwood Militia." He subsequently became colonel of a cavalry regiment in the "Old Hampshire" first brigade, receiving his commission from Gov. Levi Lincoln, and would have had a higher rank if he had not declined promotion. His father, Joseph, had been a colonel before him.

Austin had a large farm in Conway and kept sheep for the market, which was well managed and gave him good returns. Both Austin and wife were very fond of books and made free use of the literature of the day.

His popularity among his fellow-men was shown by the confidence they placed in him by electing him to serve in a number of public offices—selectman, school commissioner, assessor, county commissioner, member of the State House of Representatives, director in the Conway Bank, and member of the Board of Trustees of the Mount Holyoke Seminary at South Hadley. In politics he was a strong Republican. From the time he came into full possession of his farm until his death he gave away in charity nearly $5,000. He died on Thursday morning, July 15, 1880, aged 86, and was laid in the old burying place, with his grave in the line of the graves of two generations before him. His wife died August 6, 1889, and was buried by the side of her husband.

(207) REV. CHARLES BAKER RICE, son of Col. Austin and Charlotte (Baker) Rice, born June 29, 1829. His early home was upon his father's farm, Broomshire, Conway. He received his early education in the Broomshire district school, and later attended the Select Schools in "Pumpkin Hollow," and afterward took a course at the Williston Seminary, East Hampton. He subsequently began teaching in Conway, Natick and East Hampton. As a young man he took a deep interest in politics. In the Fremont campaign in 1856 he made addresses in Maine and Pennsylvania. He had been a member of the Congregational Church from early boyhood, and about this time his mind turned toward the ministry. Entering the Bangor Theological Seminary in 1856 he was graduated in 1859. He was pastor of the First Church in Saco, Me., from December, 1859, to December, 1861; of the

REV. CHARLES BAKER RICE, D.D. (207).

First Church in Danvers, Mass., from September, 1863, to September, 1894. Just before the close of his pastorate he had been elected secretary of the Congregational Board of Pastoral Supply, an agency then newly established by the General Association of the Congregational Churches of Massachusetts, and he still holds that office.

He received the degree of Master of Arts from Bowdoin College in 1864, and several years later that of Doctor in Divinity from Colorado College. He was a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives in 1876 and in 1877, and of the Massachusetts Senate in 1881, and was for six years a member of the Massachusetts Board of Education. He gave an historical address at the celebration of the One Hundredth Anniversary of the Incorporation of the Town of Conway; preached the sermon at the dedication of the Congregational meeting house, December 16, 1885; gave the dedicatory address at the opening of the Field Memorial Library in 1901, and has written a number of valuable articles that have been published in the secular and religious newspapers.

On June 7, 1861, he married Claire Austin Lord, of Portland (born June 7, 1838); she died January 9, 1885, leaving three children. On September 24, 1895, he was married to Henrietta Hyde Stanwood, of Boston. Their home is still in Danvers, Mass.
